

Legal services for employers

As a manager or HR expert, achieving a balance between maintaining the rights of your staff and protecting the profitability of your business is a demanding and complex task.

Businesses, and their style of operating, differ widely... as do their employees.

With increasing regulation and the cost of disputes continually rising, you need support at every level and expert legal advice tailored to suit your requirements.

Nothing detracts from our determination to seek out and advise you what is in the best interests of your specific situation.

It does not matter whether you are a multi-national company or a business with one employee, you will be confronted by employment issues on a daily basis.

We make life easier for our clients by providing clarity and step-by-step guidance through this complicated area of the law. Our team of solicitors work closely with your business to ensure you have continuous access to pro-active and pragmatic employment advice, enabling you to manage your workforce with confidence.

We help your management or HR team take a strategic view on employment law issues, to support both day-to-day business needs and long-term planning.

We advise a broad range of corporate clients and the size of our team allows for individual specialisms within its core areas of corporate support, employment rights and benefits, contracts, partnership disputes and executive terminations, discrimination and dismissal claims, protection of confidentiality and business transfers.

Clients report: "The quality of work is always great - accurate, concise and on time".

Practice leader Jo Davis is recognised as "a safe pair of hands."
