How long will my purchase take?

How long it will take from your offer being accepted until you can move in to your house will depend on a number of factors. The average process takes between 10-12 weeks from offer to completion. It can be quicker or slower, depending on the parties in the chain. For example, if you are a first time buyer, purchasing a new build property with a mortgage in principle, it could take longer and would also depend on whether or not the property is ready to occupy. If a leasehold information pack is required from the landlord or management company or their managing agents then the timing that the seller's solicitor can provide this effects the completion date achievable.

What's not included?

The above fees are based on a straightforward transaction and assumes that no unforeseen matters arise including for example (but not limited to):

1. a defect in title which requires remedying prior to completion or the preparation of additional documents ancillary to the main transaction, eg a right of way needs to be established/sorted or a breach of covenant needs resolving;
2. title to the property is unregistered;
3. all relevant planning permissions and building regulations documentation have been obtained;
4. all key documents are supplied at the outset;
5. a change of instructions;
6. all parties are co-operative and that there is no unreasonable delay from third parties providing documentation;
7. no indemnity policies are required other than a search indemnity insurance policy if accepted by the lender. Additional disbursements may apply if indemnity policies are required;
8. the property is a new build – if the property is a new build then an additional fee will be charged and that additional fee ranges from £250-500 + VAT;
9. the property is part of the Help to Buy Scheme or you are funding the purchase through a Help to Buy Loan or ISA, if so then an additional fee of between £50 to £250 + VAT will be charged, depending on the scheme used.

Some cases however can be substantially more complex or have unexpected issues. In those instances additional fees may be payable. Details will be provided if and when they arise and we will agree any additional fees with you first.
